SUBJECT: Work entitled SELDEN'S CONDENSED LEDGER
AND CONDENSED MEMORANDUM BOOK

DATE: August 23, 1960

I found this work on the deck in the general collections of the Library.*

This is probably a copy of one of the works involved in the United States Supreme Court case of Baker v. Selden, 101
U.S. 99 (1879). As a matter of fact, it seems to be the copy deposited in 1861 in the Federal court for the Southern District of Ohio for copyright registration. (At that time, copyright registration was in the United States district courts around the country.) The copy seems to have found its way into the Library about 1870.

In view of the history of this work,
please consider it for inclusion in the Rare Book Collections.

PREFACE.

---

THE PUBLIC is deeply interested in any attempt to simplify the system of accounts known as Book-keeping, by any means which does not detract from its accuracy and reliability. The author of the little treatise which is herewith presented, has endeavored to attain an improvement in Book-keeping in the line above indicated. With regard to the Treasury or Auditorial Department Accounts of either County, State or Federal Governments, he believes he has succeeded; likewise with all Corporate Companies, or individuals keeping only few specific or stereotyped accounts. And merchants extensively engaged in business, are attracted to the Condensed Ledger, by its power (as a re-condenser of their condensing books) to compress almost innumerable accounts under a few specific, intelligible heads, indicating Financial condition instantly, within a space almost incredible.

The Condensed Ledger expresses in its title its chief merit—Condensation; but its author does not claim to have expelled ordinary books of original or detailed entries. But the ordinary Journals and Ledgers, and indeed all Journals and Ledgers now in use, which are known as works of condensation, require, after an elaborate examination of their contents, a distinct and separate Balance Sheet to test and prove their correctness, while the Condensed Ledger, by new forms and captions, comprises the three (Journal, Ledger and Balance Sheet) in one, and presents numerous accounts at a glance, with an accuracy, succinctness, comprehensiveness, satisfaction and economy, beyond precedent, and which, by the old forms and captions now in use, could never have been attained, if even approximated.

Believing that the useful art of Book-keeping is simplified and facilitated by my Condensed Memorandum Book and Forms of Record or original entry, and my Condensed Ledger; they with my Forms of Report, are cheerfully submitted to the scrutiny and patronage of all interested.

CHAS. SELDEN.

INTRODUCTION.

The new system of Book-keeping introduced by the accompanying illustrative forms, contain within themselves their own demonstration. The captions of the blank forms sufficiently indicate their uses without explanation. Utility and simplicity are united to as great an extent as is practicable, and they are carried much further than by any previous structure.

A correct record of business transactions is necessary in all systems of Book-keeping, consequently original explanatory entry is indispensable. For Governmental Accounts, this is amply provided for in the Forms of Record of the Auditor and Treasurer, which present a clear and concise exhibit of all Receipts and Disbursements in their respective departments, and of Distributions derived from Taxes, Appropriations, Profit and Loss or Transfers, Auditorial, Congressional or otherwise, as provided for by Law. With regard to the Condensing Books now known, viz: the Journal, which compacts preceding books in a comparatively small space, and the Ledger, which compacts the Journal, and until now regarded the extreme condensing book of accounts, they are superseded by the Condensed Ledger, which fully supplies their place, dispenses with the absolute necessity of an Index, and presents a continual Balance Sheet, determining its correctness the whole time, which important result an adept in Book-keeping will perceive at a glance. By my system of arrangement, the Departments of Auditor and Treasurer are completely counterparted, and no error can occur which is not susceptible of quick discovery, as the only legitimate difference in the accounts between them must exist in the Floating Orders.

The Condensed Ledger which shows only monthly postings of accounts, may answer for any other interval. The Reports may also embrace any period of time. Aggregates or Balances of accounts may be carried forward indiscriminately, at any period, without changing the result. Governments usually continue aggregates for the Fiscal Year, adopting only the balances at the commencement. Individuals may be governed by intervening settlements, or convenience.

Respecting the Mercantile Ledger, comprising many and various accounts, my Ledger as a re-condenser thereof, classifying those accounts under a few comprehensive titles, and indicating Financial Condition instantly is invaluable.

The author, though always desirous of promoting the public good, does not in this instance, disclaim a hope of pecuniary reward; to this end he has taken steps to secure his right to some personal compensation, for what he thinks, a valuable discovery. In addition to the copyright of this little book, he has applied for a patent right to cover the forms of the publication, and prevent their indiscriminate use by the public.

PROBATE COURT.

INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE.

To His Honor

A. B.,

Judge of Probate Court,

— County,

SIR:

By authority derived from you officially, bearing date March 1st, 1861, and after being duly sworn according to law, I, C. D., as Inspector, without previous notice or intimation to the County Treasurer of such intention, did forthwith enter into the County Treasury, and proceeded immediately to count the money therein, and inspect the books, records and vouchers thereof, together with all other property which should be in the custody and possession of the Treasurer.

In compliance with the law requiring certificates of such examination, I hereby certify that Three Hundred and Fifty-two  $\frac{7}{10}$  Dollars was the exact amount of money so found in and counted in the County Treasury, and that the statement annexed, which agrees with the books of the Auditor, presents the exact amount of balance of each particular Fund, and of property then in the custody and possession of the Treasurer.

Respectfully submitted,

C. D., Inspector.

NOTE.

ONE Principle governing all—and the author's familiarity with—suggests his now presenting only the accompanying forms of CONDENSED LEDGER, as more practical and symmetrical than their transpositions, which would change the locality of captions, or place the names of Accounts to the extreme left or right—or other than central—of the columns.
