was for popular approval. Perhaps

none, for whatever the Kaiser said

other than that he had never seen

anyone so beautiful.

It was at the time of the 12th that the Kaiser was most attractive, for Queen Louise was in Munchen, and Queen Louise had both Fredericks and his fortune. One was to be his wife, the other his wife.

After the wedding, the

MUSICIAN AND WRITER OF KINDERGARTEN SONGS DIES AT CHICAGO

The body of Miss Mildred J. Hill, a musician and writer of kindergarten songs, who died Sunday in the home of her brother, W. W. Hill, 1433 North Dearborn street, Chicago, will arrive here Monday morning and will lie in state at the home of Dr. Henry F. Tuley, 2577 Cherokee road. Funeral services will be conducted at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the First Presbyterian church and be in Cave Hill cemetery.

Miss Hill had been an invalid of pulmonary tuberculosis for the past two weeks. Dr. Tuley accompanied her from her home, 1139 South Fourth street, to her brother's home at Chicago, telegraphing that Sunday evening announcing her critical condition, and yesterday morning Dr. Tuley was notified that she had passed away.

Miss Mildred J. Hill was born in Louisville and received her education at Wood Seminary, Anchorage, Ky. Although her reputation rested chiefly on her gift as song-composer, she was thoroughly grounded in every branch of music. She was one of the most capable critics in Louisville. For twenty or more years she was recognized as an authority on musical subjects and her judgment was constantly sought by local organizations and individuals who knew that, in her interest and kindness were conjoined with uncompromising care for those who were devoted to the art and entertaining sort; every intimate friend was often ignored of its existence. Her songs were in a peculiar sort. Her many songs, "Song Stories for the Kindergarten," has run through more than two editions, and the words have been translated into the French, German, Spanish, Chinese, Japanese and Swedish languages. Miss Hill published about thirty-five separate songs, and a collection of "Tenes Songs," though it was brought out over twenty years ago, is still being sold by publishers. Her songs are characterized by proneness and distinctive melodies by and by inventiveness and variety of harmony, and, especially, by the sincerity of feeling which found a natural, unforced musical expression for every sentiment contained in the words. The most popular of her songs was a setting of Cale Young's poem, "How Many Ways in the Infinite." This is the story of the teric of the lyric beauty of Miss Hill's style, without a breach of the Kentucky Educational Association.

MISS HILL WAS A FAITHFUL SUPPORTER

of the "National Musical Association."

A sketch of the life and career of Joel Tanner Hart, Kentucky's poet laureate, was given in a paper read at a meeting of the Muon Club by Miss Mildred Hill, the author of the play. The meeting was held at the Louisville Free Public Library, last night. Talks on Mrs. Dunlop's paper by several members followed. Two bust figures carved by the noted sculptor, are in the art department of the library. The meeting was well attended.
